

AESOP'S FABLES

THE YOUNG CRAB AND HIS MOTHER

"Why are you walking sideways like that?" Mother Crab said to her son. "You should always walk forward with your feet out."

"Teach me to walk well, Mother dear," answered the crab obediently. "I want to learn."

Then, Mother Crab tried and tried to walk straight forward. But, she could only walk sideways, like her son. And when she wanted to turn her feet out, she tripped and fell on her head

Don't criticize others because they can't do something you can't do either.
