A Balloon Trip

When I was little, I used to dream that one day I could ride a balloon. It would be a fantastic trip, where you could go visit hundreds of places and see towns and cities from the sky. I could touch the birds and caress the puffy cotton clouds. I could make friends with the sun and sleep under a blanket of stars at night. On this trip, I would take a suitcase loaded with books and stories. So, when I traveled from one place to another, I could read beautiful stories about dragons and princesses, about fairies and elves. I would also take my little dog, Tono, to keep me company. We would both be very, very happy on this magical journey.
