

Narrative Nonfiction

Story in which the setting and events are true. Also called creative nonfiction, the writer tells the true experiences of another person while creating a compelling story (narrative). The narrative may include the author's opinions and point of view.

Informational Text

The main purpose of Informational Text is to give factual information about a topic. This topic is usually about science, nature, and the social world. Often, informational text will include photographs.

Plays

Literature that usually includes a dialogue and is written to be performed in a theatrical setting. It is a story that is created to be acted out by people.

There are many genres (kind or category) of plays.

Poetry

Literature that uses style, rhythm and pacing to enhance expression and feelings. Poetry may or may not include words that rhyme. It is characterized by the use of language to create vivid imagery and/or generate emotions.